Besides being humiliated for his rash act of slapping the boy, he was made to apologize by Joseph Bithell, Sr.

25,000 ANXIOUS TO BATTLE IN AIR

Apply for Commissions in Aviation Corps.

7000 TO TAKE SCHOOL TEST

Secretary of War Baker is Satisfied There Will Be No Shortage of Good Flyers When the Country's New Immense Air Fleet is Ready—Finished Fighters Train New Men.

Since the United States entered the war approximately 25,000 men have applied for commissions in the aviation corps. Seven thousand—most of them fresh from college—have been accepted for the educational and aerial tests. Of this number about 50 per cent are expected to prove capable and will be accepted as flyers.

Hundreds of applications continue to be received at the department daily. Secretary Baker is satisfied the United States will have no shortage of good flyers when the country's new immense air fleet is ready. At present the government has many more available men for training than it has machines to train them with.

The aviation examination is the stiffest in the military branch. The men must be almost physically perfect. As between two men of generally equal qualifications a college man is given the preference.

Working for Commissions.

There are 1,000 men in the various ground schools and training camps working for commissions. Within three months the war department expects to have at least 3,000 in training. The increase will depend upon the rapidity with which training machines are turned out by the Air Production board.

After the board has completed its construction program upward of 5,000 men will be constantly in training. As soon as a squadron completes its work and proves its ability the men will be shifted to France to complete their post-graduate courses.

Finished flyers are being used in training new men. Within a short time the general movement in small numbers toward France will start and men will continue to cross the Atlantic at intervals until the spring when great numbers will go along with the other forces.

There are eight "ground" schools in the country where applicants for commissions are sent after being accepted by the department. The schools are attached at Princeton, Cornell, Massachusetts, Institute of Technology, Georgia Technology and the Universities of Illinois, Texas, Ohio and California. After courses in fundamental flying here the candidates are sent to the military aviation fields.

Aviation Fields.

These are located at Mineola, San Diego, Cal.; San Antonio, Tex.; Esington, Pa.; Fairfield, O.; Rantoul, Ill.; Belleville, Ill.; Mount Clements, Mich.; Fort Sill, Okla., and Hampton, Va. The department soon will select fifteen additional sites.

New fields will be ready to receive candidates as soon as there are enough machines available with which to train them.

In addition to the men already accepted, it is believed many thousands of applications will be received from drafted men. Provost General Crowder has ruled that any drafted man after reaching the cantonments may apply for a commission in the aviation corps.

Twenty-five thousand men have offered to enlist for the mechanical work connected with the corps. When the war department's program is completed it is estimated the corps will consist of 100,000 men of all grades—or as many men as the entire American army consisted of two years ago.

TEETH PULLED, MUST SERVE

Drafted Man's Attempt to Evade Army Proves Futile. Julius Alfred Ceresola appeared before the county exemption board at Reno, Nev., with his upper gums still unhealed from having all his molars removed a few days ago. The board suspicious, called the dentist who did the extracting.

Dr. George Smitten, examining dentist for the United States army, informed the board the teeth he extracted for Ceresola were in such perfect condition he protested against removing them and only did so when Ceresola insisted. Dr. Smitten did not think of it as a scheme to evade the draft. Ceresola was found physically fit otherwise, and the board ordered him to serve.

A Revolution In The Merchandise History of Cache Valley

Here are two new facts that together will revolutionize Merchandise business of this community:

First—The prices of Merchandise have gone entirely out of sight, it is almost impossible for the manufacturers to buy the raw material, cheap labor is a thing of the past. This is one reason why you should attend this Mighty Merchandise Slaughter.

Second—Our government have contracted practically all of the cotton and wool that we can grow to supply our dear friends and boys that are going to defend the Flag without a stain, and the scarcity of rolling stock and power on the railroads make it almost impossible to get a shipment over the roads.
